Call for Papers for the 13th International Interdisciplinary Conference, to be held in Nairobi, Kenya on June 20 to 25, 2022 at Multimedia University of Kenya (online and in-person options) – Deadline March 30, 2022

General conference theme: “Sectoral Development in Africa”

Conference Venue: Multimedia University of Kenya, Nairobi, Kenya and online through Zoom

Sponsors: Multimedia University of Kenya, Kenya Scholars and Studies Association (KESSA), Centre for Democracy, Research and Development (CEDRED) and African Interdisciplinary Studies Association (AISA)

The main theme of the 2022 conference is Sectoral Development in Africa. The theme is derived from the notion and idea that many African governments assign development responsibilities to various sectors. Some sectors such as agriculture, tourism and mining are income generators while other sectors are service areas and include education, water, electricity, health and security, which take out a lot of revenue. The purpose of governments and development partners is to address the distressful economic situation and poverty on the continent due to the failure of development sectors. There is no excuse for failure because Africa has 2/3rds of the world’s natural resources and yet remains the poorest continent. Many development stakeholders are beginning to question the type of development change taking place in Africa, asking whether it is African or Chinese revolution in Africa. Development stakeholders believe that the greatest need for Africa is fundamental economic revolution from within, utilizing the continent’s own people based on hybrid of ideas. Health is in limbo. Tourism has declined due to Covid-19 pandemic. Oil wealth has not delivered. There is a huge potential for agriculture in Africa, because the continent has the largest arable land in the world, and yet about 240 million people on the continent live below the poverty line. Many countries are still stuck in the colonial mono-cropping problems of cash crops introduced by colonialists. Africa has not taken advantage of its fresh water resource. Despite massive water, 80% of agriculture depends on rain and not irrigation leaving trillions of gallons of rain water to be drained into oceans. What can the continent do in partnership with others to revive its fortunes? How can Africa tap into its full potential to experience positive development? In what ways can Africa promote gender equity, rights of minorities and the marginalized for sustainable development? What mechanisms and strategies need to be deployed to foster development? In what ways can internal synergies be mobilized to address issues of leadership, corruption, wastage, brain drain and human trafficking, relevant education and proper engineering and agricultural models to promote development? What lessons do we learn from the effects of the spread of Covid-19 pandemic in the world? How have various governments and the international community responded to the effects of change in Africa? What are some of the efforts being made by various academic disciplines to address changing realities in education, agriculture, engineering, medicine, politics, technology, social issues, culture, water management, gender, youth, children, pastoralist issues, trade, business, commerce, religion, e-commerce, e-learning, among others? These are some of the issues that the conference will be seeking to address.
